

AMERICAN 7TH ARMY SMASHES WAY INTO MESSINA; END OF SICILIAN CAMPAIGN UNOFFICIALLY REPORTED

Official Communique Issued by Nazi High Command Says That Germans Have Evacuated All of Sicily—Assert That In Addition to Getting Their Wounded Across Straits, Axis Has Removed Allied Prisoners of War to the Mainland

By International News Service

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 17—The American Seventh Army today smashed its way into the port of Messina and official announcement of the fall of the city and the end of the Sicilian campaign was expected momentarily.

(London quoted an unconfirmed report by the Algiers radio saying that Messina already had fallen.)

A headquarters announcement disclosed that the Third Division of the American Seventh Army reached the outskirts of the last remaining port in enemy hands at eight p. m. yesterday following a third spectacular amphibious landing behind German positions only eight miles west of Messina.

News of the rapid advance prompted General Dwight D. Eisenhower to predict that Messina, if it were not taken last night, would fall today.

(An official communique issued by the Nazi high command said that the Germans had evacuated all of Sicily, and it was asserted that in addition to getting their wounded across the Straits of Messina the Axis had removed Allied prisoners of war to the mainland.)

While the Seventh Army marched into the port, Britain's Eighth Army moved rapidly up the east coast to occupy Santa Teresa Di Riva, 15 miles south of Messina.

LONDON, Aug. 17—Reports of Italian rioting, unrest and troop movements were reported.

Roast Takes Place At The Lineman Residence

CROYDON, Aug. 17—On Sunday evening, a group of members of Troop No. 2, Junior Catholic Daughters of America, held a "dogie" roast on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lineman's home.

The members attending were: "Betty" Beltz, Theresa and Ada Lineman, Dolores Founds and Patricia Coyne. Other guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ted Manney; Mary, Albert and Irene Lineman, Croydon; "Margie" and Joan Duncan, Grace Brooks, Philadelphia; and Mrs. Mary Pfeiffer, Trevese.

Group singing was enjoyed and vocal solos were rendered by Joan Duncan and Dolores Founds. Several dance numbers were given by Patricia Coyne and "Margie" Duncan.

MARRIED 57 YEARS

A Bristol couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Sr., of 201 Wood street, yesterday marked their 57th wedding anniversary. The Clarks came to Bristol from Scotland shortly after their marriage. They have two sons, three grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

HOME FROM SOUTH PACIFIC

Francis J. Rees, CM 1/C of U. S. N., is spending 11 days' furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rees, of Otter street. He is stationed in the South Pacific.

LOCAL WEATHER OBSERVATIONS

FOR 24 HOUR PERIOD ENDING 8 A. M.
AT ROHM & HAAS WEATHER OBSERVATORY
BRISTOL, PA.

Temperature Readings
Maximum 86 F
Minimum 68 F
Range 18 F

Hourly Temperatures
8 a. m. yesterday 68
9 72
10 79
11 82
12 noon 84
1 p. m. 86
2 85
3 84
4 84
5 84
6 84
7 83
8 81
9 80
10 80
11 78
12 midnight 74
1 a. m. today 74
2 73
3 73
4 73
5 72
6 71
7 69
8 71

P. C. Relative Humidity 77
Precipitation (inches) 0

TIDES AT BRISTOL

High water .. 4:57 a. m.; 5:22 p. m.
Low water .. 12:11 p. m.

Warns Against High Prices Charged for Beer

The regional Office of Price Administration yesterday took steps to protect the pocketbooks of the beer drinkers.

The man in front of the bar was advised that if he is charged more than one cent above the March 1942 price of the quart bottle of beer or more than one-half cent above for the pint bottle, then he is being cheated.

OPA said that the only increase authorized since March, 1942, was the Federal tax imposed last November, which was passed on to the buyer.

The markup, OPA added, was in pennies, so if the tavern keeper is selling his product at nickel and dime figures, "he should be regarded with suspicion."

The beer shortage is hitting Bristol and the supply has been greatly reduced. It is predicted in some places that places here may have to close part of the time.

NAVAL FORCES ARE PACIFIC PIONEERS

In Addition To Fighting Enemy They Advance Civilization

AILING PRIMITIVES

(United States naval forces, in addition to fighting the enemy at sea, also are playing the role of American pioneers in the Pacific. In the following dispatch, first of two in a series, an International News Service staff correspondent describes how our Navy and Marines occupied an island and brought modern civilization with them.)

By John R. Henry

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

AN ADVANCED BASE IN THE South Pacific, Aug. 17—(INS)—American pioneers, 1943 model, are busy today bringing modern civilization to this small island kingdom in the Pacific.

These up-to-the-minute frontiersmen do not wear the con fur cap and deer skin coat of their forebears. Theirs is the uniform of the United States Navy and Marine Corps.

They came here to build a base.

Loans Are Available For Bucks Co. Farmers

Loans for the seeding of small grain and other crops are available to farmers of Bucks County. It is announced by Field Supervisor Oscar W. Deamer, of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at the 14th Floor Court House, Reading, Pennsylvania. He is now accepting applications for Crop and Feed loans which are made on a 4 percent interest basis and mature in August of next year. In addition to loans for the production of crops, he stated that livestock growers or dairymen may obtain loans for the purchase of feed. Feed loans are secured by a chattel mortgage on the livestock to be fed and crop loans by a mortgage on the crops to be financed.

He pointed out that since, in general, the acreage and yield of wheat and other small grains are below normal this year an increased seeding for 1944 harvest is anticipated.

Farmers in this county desiring more information on crop and feed loans may communicate with Field Supervisor O. W. Deamer, Box 1073, Reading, Pa.

An Honest Trio

(By "The Stroller")

At the scene of the drowning at Eddington, Saturday night, among those who endeavored to recover the body of the drowned Philadelphia youth was Samuel Jones. Jones, after coming out of the water got into an automobile to put on his trousers and remove his trunks which he had donned to go into the water.

After completing dressing, Jones walking about the area discovered that he had lost his wallet. The wallet had quite a sum of money in it and Jones was certainly perplexed over the loss.

Friends aided in the search and cars were pushed back and forth on the grass and the beach searched. A public announcement of the loss was made, but with no result.

Later during the evening, Peter Cattani, Bristol, got into his Packard car along with Albert Bobbs and a Mr. Gross. When the men went to sit down on the seat they discovered a wallet.

Jones was contacted and identified the wallet as his. He sure was glad to recover the wallet, money and ration stamps, and was profuse in his thanks for the honesty of the finders.

Gift Shower Conducted For Hospitalized "Vets"

LANGHORNE, Aug. 17—Plans for installation of officers in the fall, donating of soap and wash cloths for hospitalized veterans, arrangements to donate blood to the Red Cross, and numerous other items were in order at the August session of the American Legion Auxiliary of Jesse W. Soly Post which was held last evening in the Memorial House.

The soap and wash-cloth shower is for benefit of hospitalized veterans, and the articles were packed last evening for shipment. Donations placed in receptacles in stores in the area during the past month to be used toward purchase of cigarettes for men overseas totalled $2.84, this to be added to the funds previously received.

Mrs. Frank Cassey was the presiding officer, with minutes being read by Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell, and treasurer's report given by Mrs. Robert Leedom.

The sum of $135 was reported cleared on a recent club. A shipment of vanilla was received, this to be sold by members.

It was reported that nine members recently enjoyed a boat trip down the Delaware River.

Plans were discussed for donating of blood by members when a Red Cross blood plasma unit visits the area this fall.

A card party is scheduled for September 9th.

At the September meeting, to be held on the 20th, installation of officers will take place. Yardley Auxiliary officers, and possibly some from other communities, will be installed at the same time. Members named to serve on the hospital committee for that evening are: Mrs. Max Ziegler, Miss Elma E. Haefner, Mrs. Ernest Robinson, Miss Rita Keating, and Mrs. Dowd. Arrangements were made to subscribe to one double share of building and loan company stock annually, starting at once.

A request was made that all coin cards be returned in September, one month earlier than usual.

Rev. Wm. Y. Edwards Gives Farewell Sermon

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 17—The Rev. William Yarrow Edwards, who for the past six months served as associate rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, on Sunday concluded his temporary appointment.

The Rev. Mr. Edwards preached his farewell sermon on Sunday. Due to ill health he does not plan to accept a permanent charge. It is stated.

ARREST 3 COLORED MEN FOR ALLEGED ATTACK

Trio Taken Into Custody At Trenton; To Be Brought Here for Trial

ARGUED OVER 60c

Three of the five colored men accused of having attacked Richard Sharp, white, superintendent at the Federal Housing Project, Bristol Terrace 2, on Saturday were taken into custody yesterday at Trenton, N. J. The arrests were on information given by Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo.

It is planned to bring the three to Bristol today for a hearing.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

American Bombers Pulverize Foggia Airdrome

Cairo—American bombers carried out a pulverizing attack on the Foggia airdrome 80 miles northwest of Naples yesterday and shot down 43 out of a force of more than 100 enemy fighter planes that attempted to intercept them, a Middle East air communique said today.

(A Reuter's dispatch from Allied headquarters in North Africa said that Allied planes had raided Turin, Viterbo, Lecce, Salerno, Reggio Di Calabria and the Foggia district last night.)

(The Italian High Command claimed in a radio broadcast that 15 four-engined bombers had been shot down near Foggia.)

One of the targets near Foggia, the landing field at Tortorella, was thoroughly plastered with bombs and numerous fires were started, including two large oil blazes. Railway lines alongside the landing ground were also hit squarely.

At the San Nicola airfield, in addition to numerous hits on landing grounds, administration buildings and living quarters were damaged.

Eight American bombers are missing from these and other operations, the communique said.

Shell Axis Positions In Italy

London—Allied Headquarters in North Africa—American 115 mm. artillery today began to shell Axis positions on the Italian mainland, reports to headquarters said.

Aerial Assaults on Europe Continue

London—The tremendous round of Allied aerial assaults against the European continent continued in force today when formations of Allied bombers set out afresh from England after the return of Royal Air Force squadrons from a heavy night bombardment of Turin in northern Italy. The assault on Turin, second only to Milan as a production center, was accompanied by diversion sorties against airfield and railway objectives in northern France and the low countries.

Preliminary reports on the concentrated assault on Turin indicated that good results were achieved.

From all of these night operations, five British bombers are missing.

NATURAL DESIRE FOR MEN ON 'SUBS' IS TO BE "OUT THERE" SINKING ENEMY SHIPS; TO THEM WAR IS A GAME, ADMITTEDLY A SERIOUS ONE

By Richard Haller

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 17—(INS)—The boy they called "Horsey" was standing by the gang plank as I went ashore.

"Write" a good story about us," he called after me. "Tell them this submarine should make all its patrols in San Francisco Bay so we could have leave every night."

"That isn't what you told me yesterday down in the diving control room when we made the big dive," I replied.

He grinned. "You got me there," he said, and I thought as I walked down the dock how typical his attitude was of all the submarine men I had met.

The submarine would leave on her sixth patrol deep into enemy waters as soon as her supplies were loaded and her tanks filled. She had come in from her fifth patrol and had undergone complete overhaul and repair. Her score at that time was more than 130,000 tons of enemy shipping sunk and some 30,000 badly damaged. There were 11 little Jap flags already stenciled on the wardrobe bulkhead, one for each enemy vessel this submarine had sunk, and now she was ready to put to sea again to add some more little Jap flags to those on the panel.

We had just finished a three-day intensive practice run, during which the ship and crew had been put through every phase of submarine tactics, offensive and evasive. The skipper, Lieut. Comm. Roy M. Davenport of Los Angeles, was satisfied, and so was the division commander, Captain Leo Pace, who had accompanied us.

This boy Horsey on the previous day had expressed, rather violently, some impatience about getting this training done and being on the way. We had come up from a deep dive and I had watched him handle more gadgets and levers than I could count, faster than I could follow.

"I'm glad that's the last one," he said, brushing some sweat off his face. "We've been in too long and we gotta get going. Those other subs are out there ringing the bell and running up their tonnage, and we're gonna be so far behind we'll never catch up."

Like most submarine talk, it was completely matter-of-fact, a natural expression of the desire to be out in enemy waters sinking enemy ships. If Horsey were ordered to duty in San Francisco Bay he would sweat a puddle. During the three days we had been out there was never a reference to danger.

This war is a game to them; admittedly a serious one, but the submarine crews in the Pacific, while facing death over long periods of time, are competing with each other in a contest to bag the greatest number of tons of enemy shipping.

After the last dive I went to the wardrobe to talk with Davenport about indoctrination of submarine men; in other words, what makes them so nonchalant toward the hazardous lives they lead.

"I feel a deep responsibility for those men," he began. "It's our job to press home every possible attack, and it's up to the captain

RECORD TRANSFERS OF REAL ESTATE HERE

William Missera Sells Lots To J. Leslie Moss for Sum of $1055

OTHER TRANSFERS

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 17—A number of real estate transfers have been recorded for properties in various sections of Bucks County in the office for the Recorder of Deeds.

Some of the transfers of property titles are for parcels of real estate in lower Bucks County.

The list includes: Bristol, sixth ward—William Missera to J. Leslie Moss et ux, lots, $1055.

Richland twp.—Henry D. Kinsey to Edward K. Hartzell et ux, lot.

Richland twp.—Henry D. Kinsey to William H. Andrews et ux, lot.

Lower Makefield twp.—Westover Corporation to Joseph W. Crosby et ux, lot.

Morrisville—John M. Cooper et ux to E. Wilmer Fisher et ux, lot.

Continued On Page Four

Congressman Gerlach To Speak To Veterans

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 17—Congressman Charles L. Gerlach, of Allentown, representing the Bucks-Lehigh district in the House of Representatives at Washington, will be the guest of honor and speaker here tonight at an open meeting of the Doylestown Post No. 175, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

He will speak on "Foreign Affairs" and will confer with officers of the V. F. W. on veterans legislation pending in Congress. At the same meeting E. P. Jepsen, commander of the local post will present Dr. John J. Sweeney, Burgess of Doylestown, with an honor roll flag to be unfurled in the center of town, on which will be the number of service men and women from this community, recorded.

Congressman Gerlach will be officially welcomed by the past commanders of the local V. F. W. post at a dinner at the Fountain House at 6:30 tonight and will address the open meeting at the post home at 9 p. m.

Girl Scouts Enjoying Week at Camp Ockanickon

POINT PLEASANT, Aug. 17—Approximately 110 Bucks County Girl Scouts from every section of the county are enjoying the second week of camping at Camp Ockanickon, near here.

In charge of Miss Bertha Cavanaugh, of Glenolden, the second week of camp promises to be a busier time than the first week that was greatly enjoyed by more than 100 girls.

Tomorrow night the Kiwanis Club of Doylestown will stage a watermelon party for the girls and on Thursday night a troop of magicians from New Hope, will present an entertainment under the sponsorship of the Doylestown Maennerchor Society.

Great progress is being made in swimming, with the pool in charge of Miss Sutherland, of Morrisville, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Eastburn, of Doylestown.

TO MAKE 'BELLEVUE' INTO ROOMING HOUSE

Langhorne Land-Mark to House Men Employed At Fleetwings

NOW RENOVATING

LANGHORNE, Aug. 17—"The Bellevue," a landmark here for generations, is about to enter another phase of its history.

The four-story, 50-room structure, which has over a period of many years served as a private school, hotel, maternity hospital, and convalescent home, is to be transformed into a boarding house for employees of Fleetwings, Division of Kaiser Cargo, Inc., Bristol.

Bed facilities will be provided for 60 men on the second, third and fourth floors; with the first floor to be used for lounges, dining room, manager's quarters, offices, etc.

Work of renovation is already underway, and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy within a month.

The structure was sub-leased by Mrs. Lorraine Taylor, of Philadelphia, the lessee, to the Fleetwings interests, the sub-lease being arranged by A. P. Townsend & Sons, Mrs. Taylor, the lessee, who

Mrs. Thomas Williams Dies; Funeral Thursday

Mrs. Mary E. Williams, colored, wife of the late Thomas Williams, died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Palm Bragg. Her survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Percy Blaine; a granddaughter, Mrs. Bragg; a grandson, Percy Blaine, Jr.; and a great granddaughter, Palm E. Bragg; also two nieces and three nephews.

The Rev. E. D. Fells will conduct the service in Second Baptist Church, Race street, Thursday at two p. m. Interment in Bristol Cemetery will be in charge of George Molden, funeral director. Friends may call at the church tomorrow evening.

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Well, Saturday was Atlantic Charter Day and it passed off quietly.

We got up early, took our little United Nations flag and went downtown to see the parade.

But the strangest thing happened! There wasn't any!

We especially wanted to see the Russian flag dedicated to the Four Freedoms.

Furthermore, on our way home we were stopped by two angry citizens who demanded to know what we were doing "waving that foreign flag around in the United States."

We told them that it wasn't a foreign flag. We said it was designed and made right here in the United States and that the OWI even had suggested breaking it out on our Flag Day.

They said, oh, yeah . . . and what was the matter with the star spangled banner? Why couldn't we carry our own flag?

We said nothing . . . but that that would make us nationalists and it's old fashioned. You gotta be a citizen of the world.

They said nuts to that . . . being a citizen of the USA was enough for them.

So we told them they were reactionary isolationists . . . and probably fascists too . . . and hurried on home.

Thought for the day: Coming soon . . . Pike's Peak Charter Day.

PRICE PANEL BOARD EXPLAINS METHOD OF PRICING FOODS

New Formula Was Put Into Operation Here On August 5th

HOW METHOD WORKS

Hypothetical Case Is Given As Means of Explaining Method

The Office of Price Administration having put in operation on August 5th a new formula for figuring price ceilings on dry groceries and perishable foods the Price Ceiling Panel of the local Rationing Board gives a resume of the new regulations, as follows:

"The Price Ceiling Panel has received from the Office of Price Administration a preliminary notice of a publicity campaign to be inaugurated at an early date, the object being to acquaint the public with the new regulations regarding the method to be used in determining the price ceilings, as well as to ask for their co-operation in the effective working of the plan.

"While much additional information must be received before a simple comprehensive explanation can be made, yet the Panel will be glad to give the public what information it has received up to date.

"Before August 5th the ceiling prices used in food stores of Groups

Twenty Firemen Report For 6th Ward Test Drill

Twenty active men turned out for the practice drill of Bristol Volunteer Fire Company No. 6, last night, and under the supervision of Fire Chief Clifford Hagerman they were given full charge of the apparatus at a plug adjoining Bristol high school, and with Henry Jolly, engineer, at the wheel, assisted by James Fandozzi, assistant engineer; and Horace Jeffries, foreman, and assistant foreman Werline supervising the laying of hose, they completed the operation on their first test in 55 seconds; on the second trial in 23 seconds, and on the third and final test they greatly pleased Chief Hagerman and his aides by completing the operation in 23 seconds. Chief Hagerman stated that in one or two more nights he felt sure they would be able to complete the operation in 15 seconds. No water was used at this test, but Chief Hagerman stated that the same test will be gone through to-night but that water would be used in order to test out the pipe men.

At the conclusion of the tests, Chief Hagerman paid high tribute to Henry Jolly as chief engineer, and upon giving a demonstration in the correct manner in which to tie a rope to tools to be hoisted to a roof, was pleased to discover that Assistant Foreman Werline is an expert in tying any and all knots used in fire-fighting.

Another test is scheduled for tonight and also Wednesday, meeting at Fandozzi's garage, Farragut avenue, at seven o'clock.

President Paul D. Brown was on hand to witness the drills, and expressed keen satisfaction in the adeptness of those who took part.

A membership drive is now in progress, and it is expected that at the meeting Thursday night, at eight o'clock in Karp's hall, the membership will have been greatly boosted.

Mt. Holly Publisher Buys Burlington Paper

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 17—(INS)—Mrs. George Sleeper, owner of the Mt. Holly Herald, today announced purchase of the Burlington Home News, weekly newspaper established here three years ago as the successor to the Daily Enterprise. Both papers henceforth will be published on Friday at the Herald plant, Mrs. Sleeper stated.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

SAMPSON, N. Y., Aug. 17—James Francis Horan, N. Y. C., husband of Catherine Jane Horan, Box 76, Newportville, Pa., has been granted leave following completion of his basic training at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Sampson, N. Y.

He is now eligible for further assignment where additional instruction will be given. Upon completion of this next step in his naval career, Bluejacket Horan may qualify for a petty officer rating.

The Bristol Courier

Established 1910
Published Every Evening (Except Sunday) at Beaver and Garden Sts., Bristol, Pa. Phone 845.
Only Daily Paper in Lower Bucks County

BRISTOL PRINTING COMPANY
Owner and Publisher
Incorporated May 21, 1914
Erroll D. Bettelheim, President
Serrill D. Bettelheim, Managing Editor
Elmer R. Bettelheim, Secretary
Lester D. Thorne, Treasurer
Subscription Price per year, in advance, $4.00; Six Months, $2.00; Three Months, $1.00.
The Courier is delivered by carrier in Bristol, Edgely, Tullytown, Bridgewater, Crayton, Andalusia, West Bristol, Himeville, Bath Addition, Newportville and Terresdale Manor for ten cents a week.

JOHN PRINTING
The Courier has the most complete commercial printing department in Bucks County. Work of any description promptly and satisfactorily done.
Entered as Second Class Mail matter at the Post Office at Bristol, Pa., under the Act of March 3, 1879.
"International News Service" has the exclusive rights to use for republication in any form all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper. It is also exclusively entitled to use for republication all the local or dated news published herein."

TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1943

FALTERING AXIS

On every front, the Axis is falling back. Germany and Italy no longer act like nations of supermen. They are fighting now only to stave off complete disaster. On the Russian front, the German position daily grows more precarious. The Soviet armies have more men, more equipment, more reserves, and steadily they are driving southward, threatening to cut off the now flimsy hold the Nazis have on the Ukraine and the Caucasus. It is almost a rout.

In Sicily, the remaining Nazi and Fascist troops are attempting desperately to pull off a minor Dunkerque. Their situation on Sicily was hopeless from the day the Allies landed and their commanders knew it.

In the South Pacific, the Americans are still on the offensive and today the airfield at Munda is being raided as an American base from which to bomb Japanese targets in the area, and to hammer away at Japanese supply lines. The whole Jap foothold in the approaches to Australia is imperiled.

And from the German front come new reports of unrest with in "Festung Europa." The military caste is preparing the German people for the overthrow of Hitler. It is a process which was started some time ago and probably will continue for an indefinite period. It began when the Germans were told that Hitler's "intuition" had been responsible for the setbacks in Russia.

The Nazi command had never, up to that point, permitted a single word of criticism about Hitler. Now the criticism is growing quietly but steadily. The Nazi gangsters are clearly paving the way for the liquidation of the mad Austrian and hoping to put a new face on the government. Everything will be the same but the mask.

INVESTMENT TRENDS

Among fundamental international financial trends of the time are the purchase by South American nations of $60,000,000 a month of United States gold and a flow of United States dollars across the border into Canada at a rate which is proving to be embarrassing to the Dominion government.

An outflow of United States gold began last October when the treasury's gold stocks had reached a peak of $22,755,000,000. The decline to date is approximately $400,000,000. South American countries have acquired large United States dollar balances as a result of expenditures by the Board of Economic Warfare. Unable to get United States goods for these dollar balances, they are buying gold with them. The treasury is not discouraging this on the theory that more gold in South America will make for stronger currencies there.

Flow of dollars to Canada has not been analyzed thoroughly. It may be due to fear of inflation because of tax policies or it may be inspired by a belief that Canada is a promising field of investment. Canada frowns on the trend because it wants to maintain its currency at a 10 per cent discount under the dollar.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM SUBURBAN TOWNS

HULMEVILLE

Herbert Potter has returned to his home following an operation performed at Abington Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McDermody and daughter Jewell, and Miss Dorothy Brodgen, of Frankford, were weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Tracy. The Misses McDermody and Brodgen made the trip by bicycle. Eileen and Edward Tracy paid a recent three days' visit to their uncle, Omer McDermody, in Philadelphia.

T. Oscar Harrison is a patient in the Abington Hospital.
Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Lukens, of Philadelphia, were Sunday visitors of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Canby.

Harold Daseburg enjoyed a week-end visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Daseburg, at Archbald.

Classified Ads deliver the goods.

NEWTOWN

The Rev. and Mrs. William F. MacCallmont, of Brookville, L. I., announce the birth of a daughter, Mary Louise, on July 31. The Rev. Mr. MacCallmont is a former pastor of the Newtown Presbyterian Church.

David C. Matthews spent a week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David J. Matthews. He is stationed at Portland Me.

EMILIE

Mrs. Jennie Woolston, New Garden, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Shoemaker.

Mrs. John Flannigan spent a day visiting her sister, Mrs. Louisa Murray, Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. John Flannigan were recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Robinson, Edgington.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Booz entertained at dinner on Saturday. Mr.

and Mrs. Charles Steele, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. David Reed, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and sons, Edward and David, Edgely. The occasion was the first birthday anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Booz's daughter, Ariene Mae.

Violet Killian fell from a swing on Friday and suffered a broken arm.

FALLSINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wittkop and son Raymond, and Miss Lena Mae Updike are spending some time at Bretton Woods, N. J.

Alfred Buckarew is visiting his son, Robert J. Buckarew, at the Minnesota State Teachers College, Moorhead, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robbins, of Elizabeth, have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wittkop.

Miss Eleanor South, of Warminster, has been visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Lena Updike.

RATIONING CALENDAR

(Here are the dates which it is important for you to remember in connection with the rationing program.)

FUEL OIL
Sept. 30—This is the last day to use fuel oil coupon No. 5.

SHOES
Oct. 31—Coupon No. 18 in Ration Book No. 1 is needed for the purchase of one pair of shoes through this date.

GAS
Nov. 21—Coupon No. 6 is valid through this date.

SUGAR
Aug. 15—Sugar stamp No. 13 is valid for five pounds through Aug. 15th.

Oct. 31—Until this date stamps 15 and 16 are each good for five pounds for canning purposes.

FOODS
Aug. 31—T and U red stamps for meats and cheese are valid through this date. Blue stamps N, P and Q for processed fruits and vegetables are valid through Aug. 7.

CORNWELLS MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ahler entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grant, Jr. of Philadelphia, recently, in honor of the birthday anniversary of R. H. Grant, Sr., who was 86.

Miss Jeannie Critchley, Harrisburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Albert Geisner, for two weeks.

Mrs. Harry Haworth and daughter May, and Mrs. John Black and daughters Irene and May have returned from a week's vacation spent at Seaside Heights, N. J.

Pvt. Joseph Bellerby visited his home on a ten-day furlough. Pvt. William Bellerby was recently home on a furlough but is now confined in the hospital with pneumonia at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.

MORRISVILLE

Mrs. Cath Pope, president of the American Legion Auxiliary here, and Mrs. Stewart Lord, president-elect, have returned home from the Pennsylvania State convention held in Wilkes-Barre the past week. Mrs. Cope served on the resolutions committee at the convention.

The Misses Elaine and Joan Wallis, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. Jerome Wallis, of 739 North Pennsylvania avenue, have been registered at the Amherst Hotel, in Ocean Grove, N. J., for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fielding, of 165 Osborne avenue, Miss Dora Fielding and Miss Betty DiLouie, of Trenton, are spending a week at Wildwood.

Councilman Harry M. Lair, is recuperating from illness at his home on 231 West Bridge-street.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johanson, of Philadelphia, spent the week-end with the Rev. and Mrs. Oliver Newton, of 329 North Pennsylvania avenue. Mrs. Johanson is the former Miss Barbara Newton.

Gail Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Howe, of 324 Clymer avenue, has returned from a visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clark G. Hunt, of Thomas Farm, in the Green Mountains, Randolph, Vt. She is now enjoying a holiday with another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Cameron, of Edgewater Park, N. J.

Miss Betty Foster, of Philadelphia, and Miss Ethel Foster, of Atlantic City, spent a few days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Foster, of Harrison avenue, the past week.

Mrs. Ralph W. Seaman entertained Lieutenant Mina Smythe, of Des Moines, Iowa, at dinner Friday evening.

Naval Forces Are Pacific Pioneers

Continued From Page One

tion of war, but, in doing so, they introduced a new way of life to the almost primitive populace. The natives obviously are enjoying it.

In the opinion of civilian authorities stationed here, there are four main benefits that the islanders are reaping from American occupation. These include: 1—Mild prosperity; 2—Lease-lend aid; 3—Physical development of the island; 4—Medical treatment.

Because of its importance as an Allied military outpost, the place cannot be named. It can be described, however, as a fairly typical South Sea island—heavily vegetated with tall palm trees, a profusion of tropical fruits and thick undergrowth, all surrounded by sandy coral-fringed shores and populated mainly by Polynesians.

Americans are not the first white men the natives have ever seen. There is a handful of Frenchmen on the island, including a resident commissioner. They and a native king rule the island.

The commissioner, a stocky, bespectacled career diplomat, pointed out that the United States has brought salvation to the islands. The Free French government, came here with the American Marines.

It was pointed out that island had been isolated from the world for almost two years and that the people did not know if nor when their homes would be over-run by Japanese soldiers.

The transport vessels that brought the Marines here were the first ships to enter the little island harbor in 18 months, according to the bishop.

In the several months that the American forces have been on the island, they have almost transformed it. The Marines arrived first, as usual.

The natives welcomed the friendly invaders. They even helped the Marines haul their equipment ashore.

No time was lost in converting the lonely island into a state of scribed, however, as a fairly typical South Sea island—heavily vegetated with tall palm trees, a profusion of tropical fruits and thick undergrowth, all surrounded by sandy coral-fringed shores and populated mainly by Polynesians.

Americans are not the first white men the natives have ever seen. There is a handful of Frenchmen on the island, including a resident commissioner. They and a native king rule the island.

The commissioner, a stocky, bespectacled career diplomat, pointed out that the United States has brought salvation to the islands. The Free French government, came here with the American Marines.

It was pointed out that island had been isolated from the world for almost two years and that the people did not know if nor when their homes would be over-run by Japanese soldiers.

The transport vessels that brought the Marines here were the first ships to enter the little island harbor in 18 months, according to the bishop.

In the several months that the American forces have been on the island, they have almost transformed it. The Marines arrived first, as usual.

The natives welcomed the friendly invaders. They even helped the Marines haul their equipment ashore.

No time was lost in converting the lonely island into a state of activity it never before had witnessed. Anti-aircraft guns were placed in position. Fox holes were dug. Other military machinery was installed and tent camps were pitched on the sites that would become the Americans' new home.

A battalion of Seabees was moved in and building operations began in a big way, improving the island so rapidly that the natives soon felt the benefit of modern civilization.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Continued From Page One

played by the Standard Pressed Steel Company, Jenkintown.

A member of the U. S. Army Air Corps, he received his training at Fort Meade, Md., St. Petersburg, Fla., Madison, Wis., and Santa Ana, Calif.

His wife, Ann Hunt Barlow, and son, James Jay Barlow, reside at Cottage Hill, near Lambertville, N. J.

The B-High Sorority of Buckingham met at the home of Jean Cope on Durham Road, Buckingham, with tennis, badminton, croquet, and darts enjoyed by everyone and after the business meeting refreshments were served.

In October the B-High Sorority will become a member of the Alpha Pi Theta Sorority, which is a national organization. This national sorority donates all the proceeds collected by holding card parties, bake sales, movie benefits, and dances to charity. Meetings are held the second Thursday of every month.

Officers of the club include: President, Peggy Mallady; vice-president, Sis Schaeffer; secretary, Grace Franklin; treasurer, Dorothy Price; reporters, Jean Cope and Doris James; council representatives, Jean Cope and Betty McClintock.

The following are members of the sorority: Peggy Mallady, Grace Franklin, Sis Schaeffer, Doris James, Bonnie Larzelere, Betty McClintock, Edith Wasser, Dorothy Price, Martha Craven, Grace Egan, Marie Leuther, Barbara Yerke, Marie Adele Atkinson, Eva Louise Atkinson, and Jean Cope.

Arrest 3 Colored Men For Alleged Attack

Continued From Page One

It is alleged that the three and two others who are unidentified, became involved in an argument Saturday morning over a shortage of 60 cents in the pay envelope of one man.

Sharp was beaten as was also Richard Crowther, white, of Andalusia.

Following the attack the five colored men jumped into an automobile and drove from the scene.

The Crimson Thread by LILIAN LAUFERTY

SYNOPSIS

Hilda Glenn, who was to become a headline in the Havenhurst-on-Sound reign-of-terror, has told how she became a composer of "soap opera" through her undeclared love for Greg Mason, a radio executive. Hilda lives with her younger sister, Peggy, and her great-aunt, Caroline Babcock, in New York City. Mason accepted Hilda's show, "Love's Wages," and said he had "just the right girl" to play the heroine's role, Pam Drury. "She's black velvet magic," Greg stressed. . . . With Pam as its star, "Love's Wages" is approaching its fourth year on the air. Hilda decides to reoccupy Glennacres, her former Havenhurst home. Greg has shown no romantic interest in Hilda but she secretly thinks that a summer at Glennacres, near the Mason home and that of his sister, Mrs. Nancy Everard, might prove interesting. Greg invited Hilda and Pam to lunch with him at Sibboney's, a restaurant rendezvous for radio folk, where Pam monopolized Greg until his brother-in-law, Pete Everard, appeared. Hilda met Crick Richards, director of "Love's Wages," who is talking with a Mrs. Powers about the radio future of her grandchild, little Rosemary. Meanwhile Pete tells Pam of a Broadway play he is writing. They go for each other in a big way. Then Greg Mason announced that Hilda was returning to Glennacres. Pete recalls a sordid piece of Havenhurst history when he denounces his uncle and guardian, Commodore Knowlton, as "an old buzzard." He urges Pam to become a Havenhurst sumerite. A day or two later, Mrs. Nancy Everard phones Hilda and engages Mr. and Mrs. Higgins as house servants for Glennacres. "Client trouble" and office politics disturb the course of "Love's Wages" as May 1 and moving-to-Havenhurst approach.

CHAPTER FIVE

Greg was detained at the office on the first Saturday in May. So I journeyed to Havenhurst-on-Sound by train without him. Aunt Carrie went with me. Peggy had a rehearsal at school that Saturday; she was playing the lead in the commencement show; she wanted me to stay in New York and see the rehearsal. But I had to go to Havenhurst; I couldn't wait any longer to see Glennacres.

Nancy Everard met Aunt Carrie and me at Havenhurst station. She said the paint wasn't dry and the furniture covers weren't finished and the house looked pretty dreary; so she'd taken rooms for us at the Devon Country Club. She would drive us there so we could unpack before going to inspect the house. If I'd forgotten the old short cut across the golf links and through the woods, she'd wait at the Club and drive us to Glennacres. She had arranged for our couple, Mr. and Mrs. Higgins, to give us tea and Aunt Carrie and I were to have dinner with her and Pete.

I'd had all the arranging I could take. So with warm thanks, I waved Nancy out of the picture, put Aunt Carrie to bed for the nap that's her life line, and started across the golf links toward the western sun and the white birches that mark the beginning of our part of the meandering woods.

Suddenly I smelled the sea. I altered my course and turned east for a glimpse of the Sound and the beach where Peggy and I had learned to swim when we were tadpoles.

There were some things I'd better catch up with before going back to a Glennacres which wasn't actually ready to welcome me—a Glennacres not yet free from the stuffy smell of other people's dinners and cigarettes and stale perfume. So I set off to the east, and a rendezvous with my youth.

That's what I thought. I was off for a rendezvous with death.

The sands of the Devon Club beach were pale amber and the sky a clear remote blue. The waves came foaming in like a fluff of egg whites. I could smell salt and grass and the lilacs on the Club lawn. New York and its fumes were far away.

The only sounds I heard at first were the faint kitterlike cawing of gulls and the sociable lap-lap of the incoming tide. Then I saw some children and a dog scampering at the northern end of the beach—the private beach below the cliff on which Commodore Knowlton's Rock lodge sits triumphant. I could hear the children laughing and shouting and the dog barking as if he were laughing too. His coat gleamed in the sun. It looked like dark copper. The rhythm of the waves and of the children's play had a soothing monotony. It gave me an overpowering sense of how badly I needed sleep. I flung myself down and burrowed contentedly into the warm sand. I snuggled down on my out-flung arm. I slept. . . . I woke suddenly to sunset and a strange horror.

My hand reached for the dying dog's head.

A series of screams had wakened me. A muffled, angry voice and the crying of a child emerged from a tangle of sounds. Heavy footsteps went plunging through the woods behind me. Gasping sobs faded into the distance, and somewhere, close at hand, there was a desperate howl of pain. Then a terrible, breathless silence louder than noise.

I staggered to my feet and peered down toward the end of the beach where I had seen the children and the red setter frolicking in the sunlight a while before. There was no sign of any living creature, but now the pitiful whimpering rose in a sudden crescendo and came to a focus. It sounded unmistakably from the woods between the Knowlton place and the Devon Club. I knew that forest well. Peggy and I had often cut through the trees on our way home from swimming. There must still be a footpath leading out to Havenhurst Road.

The dog was still whimpering. The wind was sighing through the branches and the forest was full of the faint sounds of ebbing day. I was not sure which way to go.

"Doggie!" I called. "Wait, old fellow, here I come."

He did not bark a reply. I needed his barking to guide me.

"Red!" I shouted, not conscious of the name I had chosen. "Red! Come Red!"

I thought I heard suspended breathing. Human breathing.

Somewhere ahead of me—it seemed to come from the rocky ledge where the cliff on which the Knowlton house is built slopes down to the forest—I heard footsteps. The dog howled again and was still as if a hand had been clamped over its protesting jaws. But now I knew that I was close to him. So I went plunging forward into the bleak silence which had followed that last anguished howl.

Something struck my head. I stumbled and fell. In the moment before I was able to organize my crumpled legs and arms for movement, I wondered what had hit me.

My head throbbed in a daze of pain and sudden fury as I crept ahead toward that faint plea for help I could hardly hear.

And then I found the dog. A warm tongue licked my hand. Licked and was still.

My hand reached the dog's head. I think I was going to scratch his ears. Suddenly I realized that my hand was moist. Moist and warm and sticky. My fingers had slipped into a deep and gaping wound from the dome of the dog's head to his soft muzzle.

It must have been I who screamed. I fairly hurled myself out of the woods and across Havenhurst Road, and the long diagonal to our field stone fence. I raced up the tulip bordered path and through the front door of Glennacres and down the hall to the lighted library where I heard the smooth purr of voices. When I came in they all said: "Hello, Hilda," as if I'd never been away.

Aunt Carrie was serving tea. Nancy and Pete Everard and a tall, thin man who looked vaguely familiar and not too amiable were grouped around the fireplace. As soon as he spoke in a low drawl I knew he was Attorney Jack Drummond whose house was on the other side of the Mason place.

"Oh, please come with me quickly, please!" I shouted.

"You look as if you might need first aid," Pete Everard said. "What's the matter with your hand? Have you been in an accident?"

I spluttered: "Never mind me! My hand's all right. I don't need help. Not for myself. Where's the butter? Where's Higgins? I want someone to help me."

A big, doughy-looking woman said: "I'm Mrs. Higgins, Miss. I'm glad to welcome you to Glennacres. Higgins is downstairs getting more wood for the fire. Shall I call him?"

"Yes, please call him. Tell him to bring a sheet and some clean towels and come with me. There's a dog over there in the woods."

"A dog? So what?" Pete's voice was cool and mocking.

"He's hurt. Someone tried to murder him!"

"Someone tried to murder a dog? What do you mean by that?" Jack Drummond asked judiciously.

"Just that. An hour ago I saw the dog on the beach with some children. Then I fell asleep on the sand. A scream woke me. A scream or a howl. I don't know which. I heard the dog moaning and found him as the foot of the Knowlton cliff. His head was cut and bloody."

(To be continued)

Copyright by Lilian Lauferty

Illustration by King Edwards

I Sell The Best Fruit Trees In The World! FRUIT TREE MORGAN Call or Write 228 Cleveland Street

PHILA. EXPRESS DAILY TRIPS Farruggio's Express 901 Mansion St. Dial 2958 Philadelphia, 7 N. Front Street Phone Market 2515

"We're making trees out of cannons... at BRISTOL, PA."

CAMOUFLAGE means life to thousands of our soldiers—and in the printing of vat colors for camouflage cloth Rohm & Haas Formoron is an essential chemical.

AT THIS STAGE of production FORMORON looks like candy. Augustine J. McCarthy has chosen our Bristol Plant as his "battle station" for the duration. And he believes in the attractive postwar opportunity with this pioneer company in the chemicals field.

RAYMOND JAMES is pouring FORMORON on trays to harden. "I am proud to have a part in producing a chemical which is working for victory. And I am confident of the future of my job, because of the part this company will play in building the new peacetime world."

HERE IS WHERE YOU CAN HELP WIN THIS WAR

HERE at Rohm & Haas many jobs are now open. You're needed to make chemicals for processing uniforms for our Army and Navy . . . leather chemicals for tanning soldiers' shoes and finishing flyers' clothing . . . transparent plastics for military aircraft.

Full Pay While Learning No experience is needed. We will train you, just as we have trained other men and women from all walks of life—grocery clerks, waitresses, school teachers, salesmen.

Act Now

Get the full details about these Rohm & Haas wartime jobs with a postwar future. Call at the U.S. Employment Office, Bristol—or apply at the plant Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or Wednesday evening, 6 to 9.

ROHM & HAAS COMPANY BRISTOL, PENNSYLVANIA

Baker Family Reunion Is Held At Emilie, Saturday

EMILIE, Aug. 17 — The Baker family reunion was held on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chapman.

Attending the affair were four generations. Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Sr., and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chapman, the Chapman's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Bixler, and daughter, Nancy Bixler.

Others attending the gathering were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker and sons Warren and George, Mr. and Mrs. William Baker and children, Dorothy and "Billy," Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Jr., and daughters, Marie, Doris, Lois and Janet, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baker, Mr. and Mrs. John Rank and Mrs. Elizabeth Haines, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Haines is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Sr.

In a Personal Way ---

INTERESTING bits of news mainly about people you know. A chronicle of the activities of the people of Bristol; their goings and comings. ---

To arrange for publication of weddings, telephone The Bristol Courier, Bristol 846, notifying at least a few days in advance the date of ceremony. Engagement announcements must be submitted in writing.

The Rev. and Mrs. James J. Bingham and daughters Nancy and Sally Lou, of Philadelphia, were guests during the week-end of Dr. George T. Fox, at his Radcliffe street home. The Rev. Mr. Bingham and Sally Lou are remaining for a few days.

William Southrey, Railroad avenue, and Miss Matilda Brown, McKinley street, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, Atlantic City, N. J. Miss Alma Southrey returned home with her father after spending three weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson. William Southrey remains at the resort with his relatives. Mrs. William Southrey and sons, Harry and John, returned on Thursday from Atlantic City.

LT. Harold C. Thomas, U. S. N. R., of Bainbridge, Md., and Miss Dorothy Fear, Gloversville, N. Y., were guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Madison street. J. Russell Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, is vacationing this week with relatives at Carnegies Point, N. J.

Mrs. Eleanor Appleton and sons, William and John, Washington street, spent last week at Seaside, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stuckert and son Ernest and daughter Barbara Ann Oxford Road, Mrs. Anna Davis and Mrs. Della Hall, Emilie, were Friday guests of Mrs. Augustus Praul, Wood street.

Ritz Theatre

CROYDON, PA.

A woman's best asset is man's imagination.

TONITE ONLY
New Face—Same Falcon

Also "WAR DOGS"

Wednesday and Thursday
"Apache Trail," with Lloyd Nolan, Donna Reed
Also "Cat People" with Simone Simon, Kent Smith

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor
Bristol Presbyterian Church

We thank thee, O God, that we have the opportunity of knowing thee, an infinite, eternal and unchangeable God, to whom we have recourse in time of need, and who is our best friend at all times. We rejoice in the fact that there is nothing beyond thy strength; that thou art able to do all things; we rejoice in the fact that there will be no future without thee; that we can depend upon thy presence and thy continuing power; we rejoice in the fact that thou wilt not change; that thy love will be as strong tomorrow as it is today and as it was when Christ thy Son was sent into the world. Cause us to be constant in our love and devotion to our unchanging Christ. In His Name we pray. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pilkington, Garden street, left on Saturday to spend this week in Wildwood, N. J.

Warren Del Vecchio, who has been employed for several months in Bristol, returned to his home in Plainfield, N. J., on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bornice, Beaver street, are spending two weeks in Atlantic City, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. George Elmer, Locust street, spent last week in Wildwood, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Foraker and son Samuel, Jr., spent several days last week in Seaside, N. J. May and Rebecca Foraker are spending the summer with relatives in Wilmington, Del.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Justis, Radcliffe street, vacationed last week in Ocean City, N. J.

Mrs. M. Bevan, Dorrance street, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Eisenberg, Germantown, from Thursday until Monday.

Gerald Yorty, Jackson street, visited Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stewart, Wissinoming, last week.

LT. Helen Allen, who was stationed at Fort Eustis, Va., has been transferred to the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Houser and daughter Helen have moved from 221 Franklin street to 346 Dorrance street.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson,

Now! 2 Hits! Show 6.40

The true adventure of former U.S. Ambassador
JOSEPH E. DAVIES
MISSION TO MOSCOW
An American story—told American style by WARNER BROS.
WALTER HUSTON, ANN HARDING, Directed by MICHAEL CURTIZ
GEORGE TOBIAS, MICHAEL HODOLKA, MENE LOVAST, HELMUT SARTIG

Tom Neal - Constance Worth
The Radio Rogues and The Vagabonds

Hayes street, spent the week-end with friends in Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. William Claus and son William, Jr., are guests for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patton, at Paperville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson, Wilson avenue, have returned from a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. William T. Taylor, Radcliffe street, spent last week in Ocean City, N. J.

Mrs. Raymond Jackson, Jackson street, is recuperating from an attack of quinsy.

Thomas Friday, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Friday, Harrison street, had his tonsils removed in the Wagner hospital, on Friday.

Councilman and Mrs. William A. Pearson, son William, and daughter Ann, Pond street, are sojourning at Ocean City, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Spencer and daughters are spending two weeks at Ocean City, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Douglass and son Thomas, Lebanon, have been the guests of Mr. Douglass' mother, Mrs. Serrill Douglass, of Radcliffe and Penn streets.

WOMEN TRAP COUGAR WITH A FISHING NET

REEDSPORT, Ore. — (INS) — A fishing net and quick wit captured a cougar for two women, Mrs. Paul Bernhardt of Reedport and Mrs. Charles Henderson of Klamath Falls, Ore.

Armed only with the net, the two women met the young American panther on a trail. They tossed the net over its head and the animal obligingly struggled and tangled itself in the meshes. A nearby farmer was called and carried the cougar, alive and unharmed, to their camp.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Parading a lineup of extraordinary youthful talent, "Mister Big" comes today to the Grand Theatre. Donald O'Connor, one of Hollywood's most remarkable juvenile performers, is starred. Headlined with him are Gloria Jean and Peggy Ryan.

Jive versus the classics, is the theme of "Mister Big," and the idea is said to have been developed for the screen in entertaining style. Locale of the bright story is a School of the Theatre, where a gang of five-minded kids mangle boogie-woogie with highbrow compositions.

BRISTOL THEATRE

"Mission to Moscow," screen version of the best-selling book by Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, opens today at the Bristol Theatre.

The theme of "Mission to Moscow" is America's discovery, through the eyes of a typical American and his family, of the greatness of our Russian ally whose armies checked the Nazi blitz.

Jinx Falkenburg, America's most famous magazine cover girl, is certain to cover herself with glory in "She Has What It Takes," also opening at the Bristol.

RITZ THEATRE

The dogs of the United States are being regimented on a vast scale which is totally unsuspected by the average citizen.

The first motion picture which shows the training and actual participation of these four-footed soldiers in the present conflict is "War Dogs," the thrilling drama coming to the Ritz Theatre today with 12-year-old Billy Lee in the featured role.

"The Falcon's Brother" is also offered.

Wanted—Rooms or Board 73

Have You A Room To Rent?

We Have a Victory Worker Ready to Move In

The production front is just as important to victory as the fighting front. In order to keep up production of Plexiglas, Crystalite, Lethane, Primal, Lykopen and other vital war materials, we must bring in workers from outside areas—and they must have living quarters.

If you have a spare room for a man or woman in Bristol or vicinity, here is a chance to help the war effort and add to your income at the same time. Phone Bristol 875—ask for Personnel Dept. If you have registered your room with us, be sure to phone us whenever it is vacant, so we can send you a new roomer promptly.

ROHM & HAAS COMPANY

LIVE and DRESSED POULTRY

CIOTTI'S
Quality Market
900 POND ST. • PHONE 458 • FREE DELIVERY

Scientifically Air-Conditioned
GRAND TUES. and WED.

MINIATURE—"MOUNTAIN FIGHTERS"
"KISS AND MAKE UP" "ARSENAL OF MIGHT"
THURSDAY—DOUBLE FEATURE SHOW!
RICHARD DIX in "AMERICAN EMPIRE" and
ROSEMARY LANE in "ALL BY MYSELF"

BE WISE - BUY NOW

Government restrictions prohibit further manufacture of certain roofing items that we still have on hand.

Wavey Edge First Quality Asbestos Shingles
$2.76 per Bundle

5-Gal. Cans Asbestos Roof Coating, $2.95
RUBBEROID (Roll) (Nails and Tar Inc.),
Light, $1.35; Medium, $1.55; Heavy, $1.75

Rolls Felt, 12-15-30 lb., $2.25
Square Butt and Hex., All Colors, Shingles

Asphalt, Nails, Spouting, Gutters, etc.
Building Paper

All Colors and Blends Contracted For Are Guaranteed

SATTLE'S

5th Ave. & State Rd. Croydon, Pa.

Telephone Bristol 2321
Authorized Distributor: Texaco Roofing Products

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

All copy must be received not later than 10 a. m., for publication on that day. Minimum cost, 30 cents. When insertions are not consecutive, one-day rate applies.

Announcements

Funeral Directors 6
A CONVENIENT PLAN—For moderate funerals. William I. Murphy, Est., 316 Jefferson Ave., Bristol, Pa., phone 2417.

Strayed, Lost, Found

LOST—Man's black leather wallet, cont. money, S.S. cds., draft reg., import papers, etc., on Bristol-Morrisville bus. Rew. Ph. 3997.

Automotive

Automobiles for Sale 11
BEFORE YOU BUY—That used car, look at our selection. Simpson Chevrolet, Inc., 222 E. Bridge St., Morrisville, Pa.
1938 NASH SEDAN—4 door. Good cond. Good tires. Also heater incl. Price $275. Ph. Lang. 3759.

Business Service

Business Services Offered 18
VACUUM CLEANERS—Parts and service, all makes. Also rebuilt cleaners for sale. Gilbert Appliances Co., 407 S. Warren st., Trenton, N. J. Ph. Trenton 2-1082.

Building and Contracting 19
ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR—George P. Bailey, ph. Bristol 7125.

FOR ANY CONSTRUCTION—Maintenance or repairs call Brs. 2400 or Mr. 7441. Financing arranged.
INSULATE YOUR HOME NOW—With asbestos siding and save painting and fuel bills. For estimate write Samuel Rosen, Box 484, Courier.

Painting, Papering, Decorating 26
PAPERHANGING & PAINTING—Carpenter work. A. DiNunzio & Son 902 Jefferson Ave. Ph. 3184.

Employment

Help Wanted—Female 32
We have jobs available FOR WOMEN
On both day & night shift
A-1 working conditions
Applicants should be 18 to 50 years of age. Apply at our plant, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.
MANHATTAN SOAP CO., Bristol, Pa.

WANTED—Waitress for Friday and Saturday nights. Must be over 21. Phone Bristol 9557.

GIRL OR WOMAN—For housework $18 week and board. Guaranteed increase in wages. Write Box No 507, Courier.

HOSIERY—SEAMER WANTED—Part or full time. 15 gauge work. Joanne Knitting Mills, Hainesville ave. & Lincoln Highway, So. Langhorne. Phone Lang. 9957.

SALESLADY—For drug store. Good hours & salary. Apply 114 Radcliffe St.

GIRLS—For fountain work. No experience necessary. Full & part time jobs open. Apply to Pal-Mat Cdn. Rate, 303 Mill St.

WANTED—Male laborer for power house work. Must be over 18. If now employed in essential work do not apply. Call at Paterson Parchment Paper Co., 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

BOY—To work in store. Apply to Singer Brothers, 317-19 Mill St.

Financial

Home Loans 10A
IF YOU OWN A HOME FREE AND CLEAR—You can probably borrow a substantial sum of money for any purpose on our mortgage plan. FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOC. OF BRICKS CO., 115 Mill St., Bristol.

Livestock

Dogs, Cats, Other Pets 47
PERSIAN KITTENS—Male. Apply 12 Railroad av., Cornwells Hgts., Pa. Phone Corn. 6527.

Poultry and Supplies

BROILERS—Roasters, stewers. All weights. Call Bristol 569.

Merchandise for Sale

Business & Office Equipment 51
CASH REGISTERS—National, like new. Will sell cheap. Apply 114 Radcliffe St.

Household Goods

5-BURNER OIL COOK STOVE—Burned only short time, with oven attached. Call bet. 8 a. m. & 5 p. m. Raymond Crosson, 645 Race St.

GOOD MAPLE CRIB & mattress. Florence Andrews, 219 Franklin St. Phone Bristol 3963.

SITTING ROOM SUITE—Maple, 3 pc.; maple kitchen set, 4 chairs; 9x12 rug and pad; metal 100 lb. ice box; walnut chest; bed; walnut. Apply 158 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace.

Machinery and Tools

SOUTH BEND LATHES—16", shaper; drill press; tools; gasoline engine, 30 h. p.; pump; stock of iron & brass. Ph. Mayfair 9773.

Seeds, Plants, Flowers

VEGETABLES—Ready for market: snap beans, beets, carrots, cabbage & onions. Can now for next winter. Pittonia's Pansy Farm, ph. Bristol 7354.

Specials at the Stores

WALLPAPER—Complete room lots for any room in the house, size 9x12, 11x15, incl. sidewall, ceiling & border. Chas. Richman, 315 Mill

Merchandise for Sale

HIGHEST CASH PRICES PAID—For scrap iron & metal, junk cars and trucks. Used auto parts for sale. Crawford's, Bath Road at Midway. Phone Bristol 3168.

WANTED—Cash registers, highest prices paid. The National Cash Register Co., Trenton, N. J. Ph. Trenton 3-4635.

Real Estate for Rent

Apartments and Flats 71
APARTMENT—Wood and Lincoln av. Apply Tom Asa, 1100 Wood street.

APT.—For business couple, 5 rms. & bath, priv. entrance, heat, light incl. $35 month. Call Corn. 4193-M Saturday or week-day evenings.

LAFAYETTE ST., 364-3 rms. apt. Inquire at Messina's, above address.

Business Places for Rent

STORE & house, 7 rms. & bath. Good location, will rent reas. Apply 114 Radcliffe St.

Real Estate for Sale

Houses for Sale 81
AT EMILIE, PA.—Large suburban home, 2 baths, beautiful location, shade trees, large garage & shed, 1/2 acre. Reasonable at $5,000. Financed. Apply to A. R. Burton, Realtor, 502 Radcliffe St., Bristol.

TAPT ST., 347—Bungalow, 6 rooms & bath, all improvements. Immed. poss. Bargain at $2,400. A. R. Burton, Realtor, 502 Radcliffe St.

PARKLAND, PA.—Prospect and Woodland av. 6 rm. bath, frame stereo, 2 car garage in cellar, 3 rm. bungalow in rear, incl. $3,500. (would trade on farm). Ph. Lang. 3368. Clayton Schramm.

CROYDON—5 room house, ground 60' x 250'. Heat, elec., $2,000. Inq. P. Mayer, State Road & Cedar Ave., Croydon.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

19 room Spanish type home. Most beautiful home in this vicinity.

Almost 1/2 acre ground and 2 car garage.

The right price for this home is $12,000; will sacrifice for $7,200. Possession at once.

NEWMARKET—Beautiful 13-room house, all mod. conv. Price $6,000. Possession at once.

BUCKLEY ST., 421—Single house, $2,800.

Also other bargains on hand. See me before you buy.

CHARLES LA POLLA
1418 Farragut Ave.
BRISTOL, PHONE 652

LEGAL NOTICE

There will be sold at public auction on September 1, 1943, at two o'clock P. M. War Time, on the premises of Caroline Lewis, at Steelville Road, Bensalem Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, the following described goods and merchandise, to wit:

Chairs, beds, desk, stove, dishes, pots and pans, old piano, old Chevrolet automobile, miscellaneous household goods.

The above mentioned articles are sold for payment of the lien for storage as the property of Preston Smith, on whose account the goods are held.

CAROLINE LEWIS, E. D. No. 2, 705 Radcliffe Street, Bristol, Pa.

ESTATE NOTICE

Estate of Harry Daniels, late of the Borough of Bristol, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

Letters of administration on the above estate having been granted to the undersigned, all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment and those having legal claims to present the same without delay to:

SAMUEL S. HARRING, Administrator, 121 S. 25th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

DONALD B. SMITH, Attorney, Parkside, Pa.

NOTICE

I will not be responsible for any debts other than those contracted by me.

ANTHONY LOMBARDO, 519 Pond Street, Bristol, Pa.

Phone 846

Classified "Ads" Bring Quick Results

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Phone 846

Venetian Blinds

Due to labor difficulties orders must be placed 6 weeks in advance of delivery.

Charles Richman, 315 MILL ST. PHONE 614

HOW ABOUT THAT LEAKING & SHABBY-LOOKING ROOF?

Does Your Roof Leak?

A NEW ROOF NOW WILL DO WELL TOWARDS INSULATING YOUR HOUSE-TOP AND SAVING FUTURE DAMAGE - - - AS LOW AS

$5 PER MONTH - - - NO DOWN PAYMENT.

Write SAMUEL ROSEN Box No. 502, c/o Bristol Courier

BARBETTA'S HOMER WITH BAGS LOADED AIDS FLEETWINGS

Aircraft Workers Defeat Brewster IX on Hatboro Diamond

FINAL SCORE IS 10 TO 5

Friedman Did The Mound Work for Fleetwings Nine

HATBORO, Aug. 17.—Fred Barbetta's home run with the bases full helped the Fleetwings team to a 10-5 victory over Brewster Aircraft last evening.

Barbetta's four-base ply came in the first inning with Miksis, Wolf and Breslin on base. It was a tremendous blow over the left-fielder's head. A run had scored previous to the blow and before the frame was over, Fleetwings had put two other runners on base but failed to score.

"Lefty" Friedman did the twirling for the Fleetwings and outside of the fact that he was too wild pitched steady ball. He fanned eight batters and allowed five hits but he passed seven men. Three of the Brewster hits went to "Jimmy" Cooper, a Bristol boy who plays third for the Hatboro team.

Fleetwings had eight hits to its credit with Barbetta being the only player to get more than one, he saving a single besides his home run.

Wednesday night, Fleetwings meets the Hatboro Naval Station in a return match and on Friday night, the Kalamen play the Aberdeen Proving Grounds team. Both of these are home games.

Brewster	ab	r	h	e
J. Fay	4	0	0	0
Monestaro ss	4	1	2	0
Cooper 2b	4	1	2	0
Hanby 2b	4	0	0	0
New 2b	4	0	0	0
Vanden 2b	4	0	0	0
Malone 1b p	4	0	0	0
Malone 1b	4	0	0	0
Flood p 1b	3	1	1	0

Fleetwings	ab	r	h	e
B. Barbetta 2b	4	1	1	0
Miksis ss	4	2	1	0
Wolf 2b	4	1	1	0
Breslin 1b	4	2	0	0
F. Barbetta 1b	4	1	2	0
DeBasta 1b	4	0	1	0
DeBasta 1b	4	0	1	0
Ascendis 1b	4	0	1	0
Friedman p	4	0	0	0
Stockton 1b	1	0	0	0
Schultz 1b	1	0	0	0

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
Fleetwings	5	2	0	2	1	0	1	0	1	0	1	0
Brewster	0	3	0	0	1	0	1	0	1	0	1	0

Two-base hits: Barbetta, DeBasta, Flood, Cooper. Home run: F. Barbetta. Struck out by: Friedman, 8; Flood, 8; Malone, 8. Base on balls by: Friedman, 7; Flood, 2; Malone, 1.

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight

HUNTER'S and VOLTZ-TEXACO

Voltz-Texaco	6	3	.667
Rohm & Haas	6	3	.667
Diamond	4	5	.444
Hunter's	2	7	.222

Price Panel Board Explains Method of Pricing Foods

Continued From Page One

No. 1 and No. 2, were those stipulated by the OPA and known as dollars and cents prices. But now according to the new regulations the ceiling price of each article is obtained by following a prescribed formula.

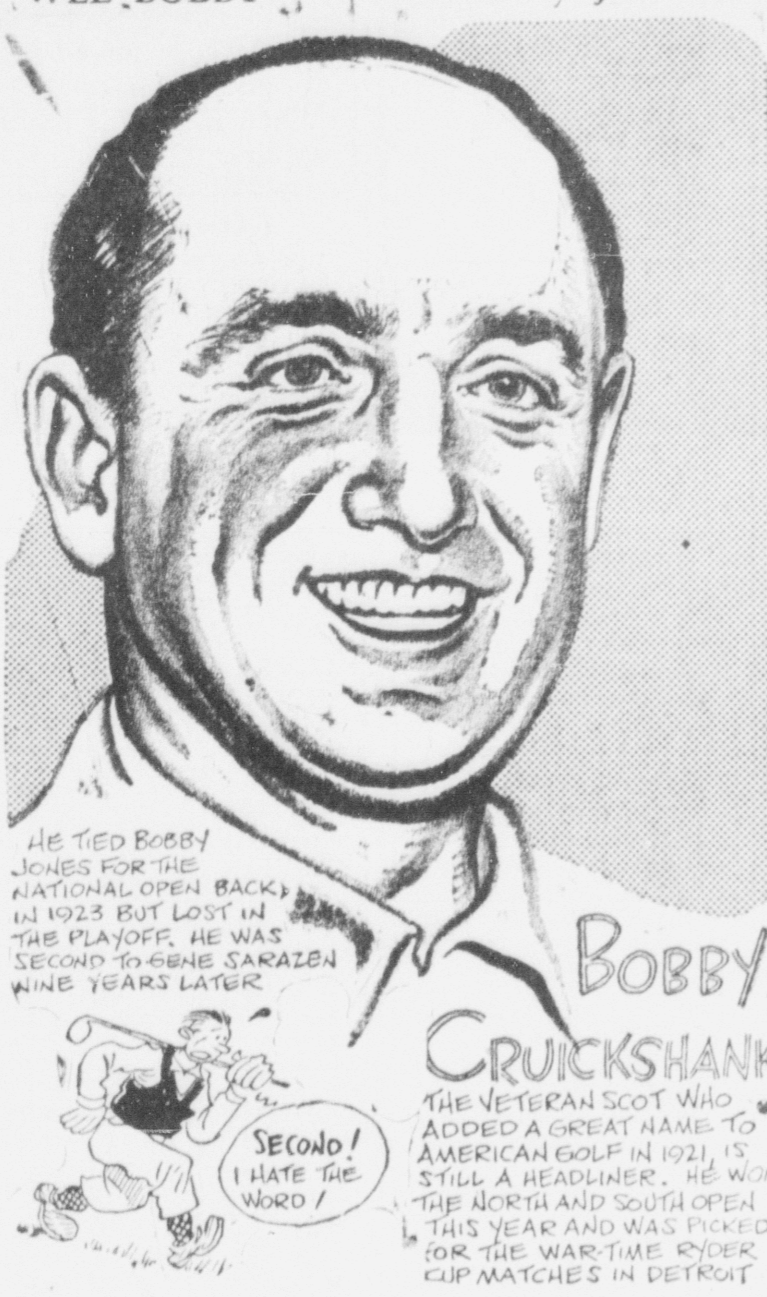

"Let us consider a hypothetical case. A groceryman purchases a box or case containing 48 cans of soup at a net cost of $4.80. According to the new formula he is to divide the 48 cans into the net price ($4.80) to obtain the cost of the soup per can. This he finds to be 10 cents. Then he examines the table of mark-ups (or really the percentage of profit) which has been issued to him by the OPA and he notes that the profit he can make on a can of soup is 27%. Accordingly he multiplies the 10 cents by 27% and finds that his profit on a can of soup is .27 cents. Inasmuch as the amount is in excess of .25 cents he is allowed to round out the fraction to .3 cents. Thus if the net price of a can of soup is .10 cents and the mark-up or profit allowed by the OPA is .3 cents naturally follows that the ceiling price on a can of soup would be .10 plus .3 or 13 cents, which is the price that the groceryman would charge.

The ceiling prices on all articles sold on August 5th must be refigured according to this new formula and the new ceiling prices placed upon the articles. It is customary to tack a card containing the ceiling prices upon the shelves in front of the different articles for sale. Should any of the articles be sold below the ceiling prices the cards must contain the ceiling price above the asking price.

The ceiling prices for Dry Groceries must have been figured five days after August 5th so that at the present time all these ceiling prices should be revised. These prices after figuring cannot be changed unless by an order from the OPA.

"The figuring of ceiling prices for perishables is somewhat different. They must be figured every week and the new prices are to become effective every Thursday. These prices are based upon the largest delivery of an article during the

"WEE BOBBY" By Jack Sords

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK

THE VETERAN SCOT WHO ADDED A GREAT NAME TO AMERICAN GOLF IN 1921, IS STILL A HEADLINER. HE WON THE NORTH AND SOUTH OPEN THIS YEAR AND WAS PICKED FOR THE WAR-TIME RYDER CUP MATCHES IN DETROIT to bring them and the ship out safely from every encounter, if he can. They have to have confidence in their captain first of all, and they have to have confidence in the ship, know how good it is and how well it will stand up under attack.

Continued From Page One

So they trust the captain, they trust the ship and they trust in God. Most submarine men are aware of the importance of faith in God. That faith is no minor factor in this service.

Ninety-nine per cent of the men in submarines have volunteered for the service, Davenport explained; the balance are assigned to it, but only after proof of their complete fitness is established, but it is seldom indeed anyone wants to be transferred out of submarines into any other branch of the navy. Yet there is no more dangerous service when all factors are considered.

For many weeks at a time submarines are entirely on their own, stalking the enemy and being stalked by him, and with no sanctuary from constant sustained danger. There is the excitement of sighting an enemy vessel, of the slighting approach, the launching of the big torpedoes and the explosions. When a target is being attacked, Lieut. Comm. Davenport sees to it that a running account of the whole operation goes over the loud speaker system so that the men know what is going on. And after the attack comes the escape from the area, often with the enemy's destroyers criss-crossing and patterning the waters in frenzied search.

Lieutenant F. J. (Jerry) Doerfler of New York City, executive officer of the submarine, described what he called the sweet sounds of an enemy ship breaking up after it has been torpedoed. "It seems to crunch and scream and writhe and rend itself in agony as its twisted plates and beams tear apart," he recounted with a light in his eyes. "We can hear those sounds through the water, even at a distance. They follow the explosions and they are nice to listen to."

Tables were decorated with pink and blue streamers, and small paper baskets, also in pink and blue, filled with candy, were given as favors. Large tubs filled with water for the children were placed around the lawn and a pleasant time was had in a large sand box. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and candies were served. Bettie received many gifts.

The tots participating were: Vivian Holton, Carol McGee, Mary Crum, Alice Jayne, Francis and Charles Litz, "Pac" and Ray Hawthorth, Charles and "Bobby" Bachser, and "Billy" Earnest.

To Make 'Bellevue' Into Rooming House

Continued From Page One

conducted a convalescent home at "The Bellevue" last summer, and who operates a convalescent home in Philadelphia, will manage the rooming house, it is stated.

Arrangements are being made for some meals to be served at the place.

Additional bathrooms are being installed, painting and papering is being done, some minor repairs made, and the interior renovated to a degree.

Soldier Wounded At Oran Now On Leave

Continued From Page One

shrapnel. Steeley was hit on the right arm, and he was in extreme danger of bleeding to death before assistance arrived.

Commenting upon his experience,

Steeley said: "We were in two landing barges, 400 men in each boat, moving into the harbor. Other men were approaching the land all along the beach on both sides of the harbor.

"Resistance was expected to be light, but for some reason, we must have had the wrong information. Two French cruisers opened fire on our barges, and at the same time, the shore batteries opened up on us. We had no chance. Eighty-five per cent of the men in those two boats died either on the spot or shortly afterward from their wounds.

"I was given first aid that saved me from bleeding to death, but it was not until six hours after the attack that I was taken to an American evacuation hospital on the coast."

After being treated in French North Africa, Steeley was taken to England, and later returned to the United States on June 25th. He was received at the Lowell Hospital in Massachusetts. Later he was moved to the Fletcher General Hospital, Cambridge, O., and finally to the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Steeley has been awarded the Purple Heart for having been wounded in action. He wears three ribbons on his uniform, the Purple Heart, African campaign, and pre-Pearl Harbor soldier.

Natural Desire For Men on 'Subs' Is to Be 'Out There' Sinking Enemy Ships

Continued From Page One

It's sweet music," Lieutenant Don Kable of Kansas City, Mo., agreed, "but I think I like the explosions of the torpedoes more, when they hit the target. That's the most satisfying sound in the world." Lieutenants Montrose McCormick of Annapolis, Md., and E. P. Madley, of Coronado, Cal., sitting in the wardroom with us, endorsed that opinion, and so did the Negro mess boy, who was serving a round of coffee.

That's typical submarine talk; always on the offensive side, about making an approach or starting the big tin fish out of the torpedo tubes, in preference to stories of evading enemy destroyers. Upon questioning they would talk about being pursued and perhaps depth-charged, but they preferred to talk about making attacks.

I had imagined perhaps the navy had a submarine indoctrination school, with psychological developments of fear-resisting attitudes. But the imperviousness of the submariner is acquired in a more natural way. There are a variety of schools the men attend before they are assigned to a submarine for duty; schools to prepare them for general work and specialized schools for the specialists in the crews. There are examinations to be taken and passed and there is much practice even before they are assigned to a ship.

And all the time they are being trained for submarine duty they are absorbing the indoctrination of the submariner men. There were a dozen or more brand new crew members on the practice run we were making and about to embark on their first patrol. They were already familiar with their jobs and with the submarine. "By the time this next patrol is over," Lt. Comm. Davenport explained, "these new ones will probably all qualify as first rate men."

I talked with two of the new men. They didn't deny they were wondering what it would be like to be stalking a live target or evading the depth charges of a convoy escort vessel, but they were just as anxious to be on their way as the rest of the crew. Working with the seasoned men, some of them veterans of all five of the submarine's patrols, these novices had absorbed the spirit of the offense and were already interested in stenciling more Jap flags on the wardroom bulkhead.

Much of the characteristic nonchalance toward breath-taking danger, Davenport explained, depends upon how well they understand their protection. "Their training," he said, "teaches them how much their ship can stand, and another important factor is confidence in their officers. A submarine commander must know every piece of machinery and apparatus and how to operate it; he must be able to take any man's job under any circumstances."

"Can you operate everything on this submarine?" I asked him, realizing at once it was a stupid question.

"All but one machine," he answered, "and I'm going to learn that as soon as we get to sea. It's the new ice cream freezer we just installed."

Whetting the eagerness of the officers and men to get to sea was the memory of a string of bad luck on the fifth patrol of the submarine into enemy waters.

The first "game" sighted on that trip had been a nice juicy convoy of several cargo ships. The weather was good, the convoy was proceeding sedately and everyone had had visions of bagging the whole group. Davenport maneuvered the submarine for several hours to get to a point where the shooting would be just right. But the convoy managed to escape undamaged.

The next target sighted was a brace of enemy cruisers and Lieut. Comm. Davenport began stalking for a kill that would gladden the heart of any submarine skipper. "Then an enemy destroyer hobbled up over the hill," he said, "and a little while later two planes came in and we had to duck."

"We felt pretty bad about those cruisers getting away, especially so soon after the convoy stood us up. Both times I said there must be something better in store for us that we were being saved for."

"It was shortly afterward that we sighted the freighter. She was a big one, and we hit her plenty. But that was when we got ours. Those sweet sounds of the torpedoes exploding and the ship breaking up that the boys told you about, were still echoing in our ears when they came after us."

Lieut. (Jg) S. P. Gullett of Ruston, La., and Ensign R. J. Williams of Louisville, Ky., told later about the rain of depth charges Japanese escort vessels let down near the submarine. Sam Gullett declared he counted a large number of them in what he estimated was about 20 minutes.

But the heart-breaker of the patrol came when a Japanese carrier was sighted. That would have been a prize far beyond the two cruisers or the convoy and even the big freighter that had gone to the bottom. The submarine started maneuvering for a shot that was never fired. The enemy carrier took advantage of a piece of bad weather and good luck and disappeared into a cloud area.

Then the submarine brushed shoulders with an enemy undersea boat that high-tailed out of the vicinity before a shot could be fired. With such a sequence to remember, the crew and the officers have blood in their eyes for their next patrol, and they also lost some time during which other U. S. submarines have been steadily adding to their scores of enemy tonnage sunk and damaged. They intend to catch up.

Members of the crew began telling me what the crew looks like when they respond to a general alarm. That means they have to get to their battle stations and fast. One-third of the crew is always up and sometimes the other two-thirds are asleep. Some of them sleep in their skivvies, which is navy language for underpants, and some of them hang their skivvies on hooks. They don't stop to brush their teeth when the alarm sounds. They go just as they are, skivvies or no skivvies, and stay that way until the shooting, if any, is over. Sometimes, however, it was explained, if it's cold and a man gets caught for a long spell without his skivvies, somebody will send him up a little waist-length jacket to keep him warm.

The skipper, it was whispered, has some light-blue pajamas with bright-colored tropical fish on them that he has worn through several rigorous occasions.

Perhaps it isn't accurate to refer to submarine men as nonchalant. They are aware of their danger and they don't laugh it off. Rather they take it in stride, trusting in their ship, their captain, and God. They have time to laugh and they do laugh. Mostly, however, they work. It's doubtful whether there is any branch of service in the entire navy where the men work as hard as they do in submarines. The hulls of those cigar-shaped vessels are packed with machinery and apparatus. The comforts of life, for instance, bunks, are tucked in with it. Some of the bunks are slung over torpedoes, most of them are handy to where men work. There is no privacy and not even Greta Garbo could arrange to be alone.

Patrols often last many weeks when a submarine is entirely alone, and more often than not, deep in dangerous enemy waters. There is a portion of the crew who never see the sky in all that time. Frequently it is necessary to remain submerged during all daylight hours. And several score men live agreeably and in reasonable comfort.

They eat extremely well, much of their food preserved by refrigeration. The new ice-cream freezer is an example of their menus. There is also a washing machine and there are showers. An adequate distillation plant provides fresh water. There are magazines and books. But it's a rigorous life and danger for them or for the other fellow can pop over the horizon, out of the sky or up from the sea at any moment of the day or night.

But very rarely does a submariner ever ask for transfer to another branch of service. It's in their blood and they are proud of their calling. They are intent on stenciling as many of those little Jap flags on the wardroom bulkheads as possible. They are not defenders; they are offensive fighters.

Continued From Page One

movements indicated today that important developments in the Italian political situation are imminent as a result of the stepped-up Allied aerial offensive against the Italian mainland.

A Reuter's dispatch from Rome said that government archives and furniture are being moved from the Italian War Ministry in Rome

American Seventh Army Smashes Way Into Messina

Continued From Page One

Commenting upon his experience,

Steeley said: "We were in two landing barges, 400 men in each boat, moving into the harbor. Other men were approaching the land all along the beach on both sides of the harbor.

"Resistance was expected to be light, but for some reason, we must have had the wrong information. Two French cruisers opened fire on our barges, and at the same time, the shore batteries opened up on us. We had no chance. Eighty-five per cent of the men in those two boats died either on the spot or shortly afterward from their wounds.

"I was given first aid that saved me from bleeding to death, but it was not until six hours after the attack that I was taken to an American evacuation hospital on the coast."

After being treated in French North Africa, Steeley was taken to England, and later returned to the United States on June 25th. He was received at the Lowell Hospital in Massachusetts. Later he was moved to the Fletcher General Hospital, Cambridge, O., and finally to the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Steeley has been awarded the Purple Heart for having been wounded in action. He wears three ribbons on his uniform, the Purple Heart, African campaign, and pre-Pearl Harbor soldier.

Natural Desire For Men on 'Subs' Is to Be 'Out There' Sinking Enemy Ships

Continued From Page One

It's sweet music," Lieutenant Don Kable of Kansas City, Mo., agreed, "but I think I like the explosions of the torpedoes more, when they hit the target. That's the most satisfying sound in the world." Lieutenants Montrose McCormick of Annapolis, Md., and E. P. Madley, of Coronado, Cal., sitting in the wardroom with us, endorsed that opinion, and so did the Negro mess boy, who was serving a round of coffee.

That's typical submarine talk; always on the offensive side, about making an approach or starting the big tin fish out of the torpedo tubes, in preference to stories of evading enemy destroyers. Upon questioning they would talk about being pursued and perhaps depth-charged, but they preferred to talk about making attacks.

I had imagined perhaps the navy had a submarine indoctrination school, with psychological developments of fear-resisting attitudes. But the imperviousness of the submariner is acquired in a more natural way. There are a variety of schools the men attend before they are assigned to a submarine for duty; schools to prepare them for general work and specialized schools for the specialists in the crews. There are examinations to be taken and passed and there is much practice even before they are assigned to a ship.

And all the time they are being trained for submarine duty they are absorbing the indoctrination of the submariner men. There were a dozen or more brand new crew members on the practice run we were making and about to embark on their first patrol. They were already familiar with their jobs and with the submarine. "By the time this next patrol is over," Lt. Comm. Davenport explained, "these new ones will probably all qualify as first rate men."

I talked with two of the new men. They didn't deny they were wondering what it would be like to be stalking a live target or evading the depth charges of a convoy escort vessel, but they were just as anxious to be on their way as the rest of the crew. Working with the seasoned men, some of them veterans of all five of the submarine's patrols, these novices had absorbed the spirit of the offense and were already interested in stenciling more Jap flags on the wardroom bulkhead.

Much of the characteristic nonchalance toward breath-taking danger, Davenport explained, depends upon how well they understand their protection. "Their training," he said, "teaches them how much their ship can stand, and another important factor is confidence in their officers. A submarine commander must know every piece of machinery and apparatus and how to operate it; he must be able to take any man's job under any circumstances."

"Can you operate everything on this submarine?" I asked him, realizing at once it was a stupid question.

"All but one machine," he answered, "and I'm going to learn that as soon as we get to sea. It's the new ice cream freezer we just installed."

Steeley said: "We were in two landing barges, 400 men in each boat, moving into the harbor. Other men were approaching the land all along the beach on both sides of the harbor.

"Resistance was expected to be light, but for some reason, we must have had the wrong information. Two French cruisers opened fire on our barges, and at the same time, the shore batteries opened up on us. We had no chance. Eighty-five per cent of the men in those two boats died either on the spot or shortly afterward from their wounds.

"I was given first aid that saved me from bleeding to death, but it was not until six hours after the attack that I was taken to an American evacuation hospital on the coast."

After being treated in French North Africa, Steeley was taken to England, and later returned to the United States on June 25th. He was received at the Lowell Hospital in Massachusetts. Later he was moved to the Fletcher General Hospital, Cambridge, O., and finally to the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Steeley has been awarded the Purple Heart for having been wounded in action. He wears three ribbons on his uniform, the Purple Heart, African campaign, and pre-Pearl Harbor soldier.

Natural Desire For Men on 'Subs' Is to Be 'Out There' Sinking Enemy Ships

Continued From Page One

It's sweet music," Lieutenant Don Kable of Kansas City, Mo., agreed, "but I think I like the explosions of the torpedoes more, when they hit the target. That's the most satisfying sound in the world." Lieutenants Montrose McCormick of Annapolis, Md., and E. P. Madley, of Coronado, Cal., sitting in the wardroom with us, endorsed that opinion, and so did the Negro mess boy, who was serving a round of coffee.

That's typical submarine talk; always on the offensive side, about making an approach or starting the big tin fish out of the torpedo tubes, in preference to stories of evading enemy destroyers. Upon questioning they would talk about being pursued and perhaps depth-charged, but they preferred to talk about making attacks.

I had imagined perhaps the navy had a submarine indoctrination school, with psychological developments of fear-resisting attitudes. But the imperviousness of the submariner is acquired in a more natural way. There are a variety of schools the men attend before they are assigned to a submarine for duty; schools to prepare them for general work and specialized schools for the specialists in the crews. There are examinations to be taken and passed and there is much practice even before they are assigned to a ship.

And all the time they are being trained for submarine duty they are absorbing the indoctrination of the submariner men. There were a dozen or more brand new crew members on the practice run we were making and about to embark on their first patrol. They were already familiar with their jobs and with the submarine. "By the time this next patrol is over," Lt. Comm. Davenport explained, "these new ones will probably all qualify as first rate men."

I talked with two of the new men. They didn't deny they were wondering what it would be like to be stalking a live target or evading the depth charges of a convoy escort vessel, but they were just as anxious to be on their way as the rest of the crew. Working with the seasoned men, some of them veterans of all five of the submarine's patrols, these novices had absorbed the spirit of the offense and were already interested in stenciling more Jap flags on the wardroom bulkhead.

Much of the characteristic nonchalance toward breath-taking danger, Davenport explained, depends upon how well they understand their protection. "Their training," he said, "teaches them how much their ship can stand, and another important factor is confidence in their officers. A submarine commander must know every piece of machinery and apparatus and how to operate it; he must be able to take any man's job under any circumstances."

"Can you operate everything on this submarine?" I asked him, realizing at once it was a stupid question.

"All but one machine," he answered, "and I'm going to learn that as soon as we get to sea. It's the new ice cream freezer we just installed."

Whetting the eagerness of the officers and men to get to sea was the memory of a string of bad luck on the fifth patrol of the submarine into enemy waters.

The first "game" sighted on that trip had been a nice juicy convoy of several cargo ships. The weather was good, the convoy was proceeding sedately and everyone had had visions of bagging the whole group. Davenport maneuvered the submarine for several hours to get to a point where the shooting would be just right. But the convoy managed to escape undamaged.

The next target sighted was a brace of enemy cruisers and Lieut. Comm. Davenport began stalking for a kill that would gladden the heart of any submarine skipper. "Then an enemy destroyer hobbled up over the hill," he said, "and a little while later two planes came in and we had to duck."

"We felt pretty bad about those cruisers getting away, especially so soon after the convoy stood us up. Both times I said there must be something better in store for us that we were being saved for."

"It was shortly afterward that we sighted the freighter. She was a big one, and we hit her plenty. But that was when we got ours. Those sweet sounds of the torpedoes exploding and the ship breaking up that the boys told you about, were still echoing in our ears when they came after us."

Lieut. (Jg) S. P. Gullett of Ruston, La., and Ensign R. J. Williams of Louisville, Ky., told later about the rain of depth charges Japanese escort vessels let down near the submarine. Sam Gullett declared he counted a large number of them in what he estimated was about 20 minutes.

But the heart-breaker of the patrol came when a Japanese carrier was sighted. That would have been a prize far beyond the two cruisers or the convoy and even the big freighter that had gone to the bottom. The submarine started maneuvering for a shot that was never fired. The enemy carrier took advantage of a piece of bad weather and good luck and disappeared into a cloud area.

Then the submarine brushed shoulders with an enemy undersea boat that high-tailed out of the vicinity before a shot could be fired. With such a sequence to remember, the crew and the officers have blood in their eyes for their next patrol, and they also lost some time during which other U. S. submarines have been steadily adding to their scores of enemy tonnage sunk and damaged. They intend to catch up.

Members of the crew began telling me what the crew looks like when they respond to a general alarm. That means they have to get to their battle stations and fast. One-third of the crew is always up and sometimes the other two-thirds are asleep. Some of them sleep in their skivvies, which is navy language for underpants, and some of them hang their skivvies on hooks. They don't stop to brush their teeth when the alarm sounds. They go just as they are, skivvies or no skivvies, and stay that way until the shooting, if any, is over. Sometimes, however, it was explained, if it's cold and a man gets caught for a long spell without his skivvies, somebody will send him up a little waist-length jacket to keep him warm.

The skipper, it was whispered, has some light-blue pajamas with bright-colored tropical fish on them that he has worn through several rigorous occasions.

Perhaps it isn't accurate to refer to submarine men as nonchalant. They are aware of their danger and they don't laugh it off. Rather they take it in stride, trusting in their ship, their captain, and God. They have time to laugh and they do laugh. Mostly, however, they work. It's doubtful whether there is any branch of service in the entire navy where the men work as hard as they do in submarines. The hulls of those cigar-shaped vessels are packed with machinery and apparatus. The comforts of life, for instance, bunks, are tucked in with it. Some of the bunks are slung over torpedoes, most of them are handy to where men work. There is no privacy and not even Greta Garbo could arrange to be alone.

Patrols often last many weeks when a submarine is entirely alone, and more often than not, deep in dangerous enemy waters. There is a portion of